DEATH PREDICTED IN DREAM

Founder of Gazette Retires From the Business—Spanishtown Scene of Brutal Murder.

[In this issue is continued a chronicle of some of the events of 1861.]

On the evening of May 23, 1861, the vicinity of Spanishtown was the scene of an unusually deliberate and cold blooded murder, the only apparent motive of which was revenge. The victim was James A. Robinson, a somewhat well-to-do farmer residing about three miles east of Spanishtown. Apparently for some time Robinson had been at variance with some of his neighbors over land claims, and while to a great extent these had been settled at the time of the murder, no other cause for the act could be ascribed. Robinson was alone in the house at the time of his death, which must have occurred about 8 o'clock in the evening. The two men who were hired to work about the place left at 7:30 to go to the postoffice at Spanishtown, being accompanied on their journey by the two dogs belonging on the farm. When these men left, Robinson had started to make some biscuit, for the morning's breakfast, preparatory to an early start on a trip to San Francisco with some cattle. The biscuit had been made and placed in the oven, and apparently Robinson was sitting near an uncurtained window awaiting the process of baking when the fatal shot was fired from the outside. Apparently the weapon used was a shotgun, loaded with about a dozen buckshot, the majority of which entered the head near the left eye. That the murderer had stood very close to the window is shown by the fact that the sash and glass was badly stained with powder smoke. There was no attempt at robbery, as there was no sign that anyone had entered the house, and the money of the dead man remained untouched. Shortly after the return of the men, one of the dogs died of poisoning, showing that the murderer had awaited the departure of the men and planned to get rid of the dogs had they remained about the place. The victim left a family, who were residing in San Francisco, and at the time of his death was possessed of property valued at about $2500. So far as can be ascertained the murderer was never apprehended, nor was it determined who was responsible for the deed.

On the 29th of June, 1861, the first agitation for fire protection for the city was started. While there had been no fires of consequence in the town, several disasters of this sort had occurred in the vicinity, and there had aroused a feeling of uneasiness. These dangers were recounted to the people and they were urged to take some steps to provide for the desired protection. This agitation soon bore fruit, for on the 11th of September a meeting was held for the purpose of forming a fire company. John W. Ackerson presided over the meeting, and John Ames acted as secretary. After some little discussion it was decided to form a permanent organization, and for this purpose a committee consisting of J. W. Ackerson, W. C. Gray, J. W. Turner, J. V. Diller and John Ames, was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws and to solicit public subscriptions for the purpose of providing the necessary apparatus. Two weeks later another meeting was held, at which an organization was perfected under the name of Redwood City Fire Company No. 1. The first officers elected were: W. C. Gray, foreman; W. H. Shreve, first assistant foreman; C. A. Perkins, second assistant foreman; John Ames, secretary, and J. W. Ackerson, treasurer.

On the 20th of July, 1861, William Godfrey announced his retirement from the paper which he had established a little more than two years previously, having sold the office and business to David Downer & Co. While no special announcement was made of the fact, with the advent of the new proprietors Charles N. Fox again assumed the editorial duties of the paper. Some time before the sale was made, Mr. Godfrey had determined to retire from the business and engage in other pursuits. For several weeks he had announced that the business was for sale before securing a purchaser. What other business Mr. Godfrey undertook was not stated, but it is evident that he soon decided to leave for other parts as within a short time of the sale of the paper his other property in the town was advertised for sale. The new management of the paper espoused the cause of the Peoples Party Ticket in the campaign for the selection of county officers, which commenced shortly after they assumed control and made a hot and successful campaign.

A story of a most remarkable prediction of death in the dream of a resident of this county, is related in the issue of the Gazette of July 27th.

On the Saturday morning previous, Jefferson Higgins, whose home was near Searsville, on arriving in the morning announced to his companions that during the night he had dreamed that they had attempted to remove certain logs, the appearance of which he described, and that in the attempt he had been crushed and killed. The logs were recognized by the men from the description to be two which they had lying near together and one above the other upon a slope of the mountain in the redwoods which they had completed arrangements to move that morning with the assistance of Higgins. Nothing daunted by the singular dream or its uncanny prognostication, the men went about the work as usual, although the precaution was taken to carefully examine the position of the logs, with the conclusion that there was no danger of their rolling so as to do injury to any of the party. After the inspection the team was hitched to the upper one of the two logs and preparations made for the start. At this time Higgins was standing on the lower log, and as the team started both logs began to roll. Higgins saw his danger and made an attempt to spring from his position over the upper log to safety, but owing to his insecure footing failed and fell between the two, being so badly crushed that he died early the same afternoon. Mr. Higgins was a young man, about 30 years of age and was considered a sober and industrious as well as a careful man, popular among his associates.

Even at this early date, wealthy business men of San Francisco were looking to San Mateo County for the sites of their homes, and were preparing for the erection of mansions—or at least houses of much more than ordinary pretensions. A notable instance of this was the purchase by Mr. Sherwood, of the firm of Barrett & Sherwood, jewelers of San Francisco, of a tract of 60 acres from Colonel Haraszthy, near Crystal Spring. Although the tract was covered with beautiful groves of trees, and admirably situated, it was secured by Mr. Sherwood for what would now be the insignificant price of $60 an acre. It was announced that Mr. Sherwood would soon commence the erection of a costly mansion on the place and that the entire grounds were to be converted into a park.

The State and County election was held September 4, 1861, resulting in a victory for the Peoples County Ticket, although in some cases the majorities were exceedingly small, running as low as nine in one instance. While the county non-partisan ticket won out, the Republicans gained a signal victory in the state ticket. The returns for Governor show the total vote of the county to have been 1185, Leland Stanford receiving a majority of 319. Up to this time the county had been regarded as solidly Democratic, and the change was attributed solely to the sentiment of opposition to the secession movement. During this campaign another effort was made to deprive Redwood City of the county seat. The attempt proved abortive, however, the voters showing their disapproval of the scheme most emphatically. The strongest opponent of this city in the canvass was San Mateo Villa, a tract where offers had been made of free sites for the buildings as well as money for construction, as a sort of boom proposition for the locality. The vote in favor of a retention of the county seat in this city was 656, while San Mateo Villa received 364, with about a dozen scattering votes for other locations.

John Fernandez, a Portuguese, aged 35 years, employed by the San Mateo Creamery, committed suicide Monday by hanging himself to a tree. When found, Fernandez had been dead about an hour. From appearances the deceased evidently attempted to save himself as his left pocket was turned inside out and his knife was lying on the ground, giving the impression that he had endeavored to cut the rope that was strangling him.

NO MORE SALOONS NEAR THE SCHOOLS

Council Determines to Provide

END OF THE SLOT MACHINES

City Will Test Sample of New Street
Pavement—Preparing For the Resumption of Street Work.

Trustee Beger was the only absentee at the meeting of the Council Tuesday evening, when saloons and slot machines came in for a considerable discussion. On the recommendation of Trustee Rice, chairman of the committee on public morals, the City Attorney was directed to prepare a number of amendments to the liquor license ordinance, one of which will result in the closing of at least four saloons which have been operating in their present locations for a number of years under city licenses. This results from a determination to grant no licenses for any saloon within a distance of 200 feet, in a direct line from any public school building. The recommendation was strongly opposed by Trustee Hynding, who contended that the action would amount to a practical confiscation of private property rights acquired under sanction from the city, which he could not countenance. Trustees Rice and Merrill, in support of the measure, urged that a saloon in close proximity to a school was a menace to the morals of the pupils. On motion of Trustee Brown, seconded by Rice, the recommendation was adopted, Trustee Hynding voting no.

Another amendment proposed will require hotels conducting a bar under a "Class A" license to secure a separate permit in order to serve liquors of any character in the dining room with meals. This change is made solely for the purpose of insuring the validity of the ordinance, and the license fee was placed at the nominal figure of $5 a quarter at the suggestion of Trustee Hynding, who stated that it was the general custom of the hotels to serve wines and beer at meals without extra charge in lieu of tea or coffee.

Although the recommendations made by the committee were generally in the nature of a tightening of the lines about the liquor business, the saloon men were given one concession. Under the proposed amendments to the city law they will be permitted to keep open until midnight instead of closing at 11 o'clock as has been the rule.

Upon a recommendation from the same committee it was also decided to put the nickel-in-the-slot machine under the ban of the city law. These sly consumers of the hard-earned small change found no apologists among the Trustees, and attorney Mansfield was instructed to prepare an ordinance to prohibit the keeping of slot-machines and similar gambling devices, whether played for money or goods.

The changes in the names of streets, which have been under consideration for some months was finally made effective by the passage of the ordinance as originally outlined.

The garbage ordinance was given its first reading and will probably be adopted at the next meeting. The provisions are along the lines indicated in the reports of past discussions. Before the ordinance goes into effect arrangements must be made for a place to dispose of the garbage.

The probabilities are that the disposition of the surplus in the Roosevelt avenue fund will not be disposed of for some little time. While the majority of the property owners seem to prefer that the money should be spent in the further improvement of the street, they are not agreed upon the method. G. H. Elliott offered the suggestion that a portion of the lot at the end of the street and abutting Cedar street be purchased and a curve provided at this point, which would materially increase the convenience of the public. The cost of the necessary property is estimated at $1200. Mr. Elliott stated that he was ready to circulate a petition among those interested.

On the motion of Trustee Hynding Street Superintendent Dickey was instructed to fill the chuk-holes in Cooper and adjacent streets.

One of the most important matters taken up at the meeting was the recommendation of proceedings for street improvement. A resolution of intent was adopted providing for the macadamizing of the following streets:

Webster street, from Jefferson to East Fuller street.
Hamilton street, its entire length to East Fuller street.
Winlow street, from the railroad to East Fuller street.
Bradford street, from Arguello to Winlow street.
Fuller street, from Arguello to Easton street.
Brerster avenue, from the County road to Allerton street.
East Fuller street, from Webster to Fuller street.
Franklin street, from Jefferson avenue to Main street.
Jackson avenue, from Adams street to the railroad.
Main street, from a point where East Marshall street if extended would intersect Main to Holder street.
Main street, from the railroad to Franklin street.
Maple street, from Main to Spring street.
Cedar street, from Mound to the County road.
Chestnut street, from Chew to Spring street.
Heller street, from Mound to Spruce street.

Festival Queen Selected.

SAN MATEO, June 4.—Elected by a decisive majority from among a number of beautiful young women, Miss Elinor Falvey will rule as the queen of the San Mateo carnival, which will be held from June 9 to 12, in celebration of the incorporation of the municipality. Prominent among the contestants were many of the prettiest and most popular young women of the city, and to the final count the contest was close. Victory in the contest for queen of the carnival had almost been conceded to Miss Ethel Gilmartin, with Miss Louise Westcott as second choice, when suddenly this evening, during the last hour of voting, the adherents of Miss Falvey cast more than 75,000 votes and secured a lead which it was impossible to overcome. The final standing of the first three contestants was: Miss Falvey 106,000; Miss Gilmartin 84,010; Miss Westcott 71,570. Miss Falvey was declared the winner by the committee and will rule with undisputed sway. The different committees having the big affair in charge are rapidly completing their labors, and with each succeeding day it seems certain that the celebration will be the greatest and most successful ever held in San Mateo County.

FIRE DEPARTMENT INSPECTED

San Francisco Chief Compliments the Local Organization.

Stephen Russell, battalion chief of the San Francisco fire department, was in town last Saturday and inspected the local department with Chief Winter. He was highly pleased with the efficiency and equipment of the department. He eulogized the chief for encouraging the matter of securing the electric fire alarm system for Redwood City which he declared was indispensable in any department. Mr. Russell spent many of his younger years at Mayfield and Menlo Park but has rounded out twenty-one years in the fire department of San Francisco. While passing Germania Hall he became reminiscent and recounted the many enjoyable dances he had there in the days of long ago. Mr. Russell is one of seven who passed the civil service examinations for promotions some time ago and received the desired position in the department but others who had been appointed with out taking the examination brought the matter into court and succeeded in winning the case in the Superior Court. Mr. Russell and his associates have appealed the case to the Appellate Court of this district and the action will soon be heard by that tribunal. The many friends of Mr. Russell hope he will win for them.

It is filled with a jellylike substance.

In the middle ages cabbages were so rare they had to be salted. A cabbage from Holland remained an expensive present into the sixteenth century, 20 English shillings being paid for six of these and a few carrots in 1595.

Servia.

Servia retains many memories of Turkish rule. The women are kept in the background. The men marry for the qualities of the housewife rather than for romantic love. It is often that young men marry women much older than themselves.

Under the laws of China the man who loses his temper in a discussion is sent to jail for five days to cool down.

Father of Electricity.
The first step along the way of electricity was made by the celebrated Galvani, who just before the beginning of the last century demonstrated that electricity could be produced by the contact of metals and fluids. Galvani's experiments suggested to Volta in 1800 the electric battery, out of which have come all the other electrical triumphs.

ATION'S HEROES ARE REMEMBERED

ator Marshall Black Pays Impressive Tribute to De- fenders of Nation.

ETERANS HONOR COMRADES

and Army Veterans, Womens Re- lief Corps and Public School Pu- bils Unite in Observances.

Business cares were laid aside by the people of Redwood City last Monday when they joined with the Veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic and members of George S. Evans Womens Relief Corps in the sacred duty of paying tribute to the memory of the soldier and of the nation. While the call of the last "retreat" has so thinned the ranks of General George S. Evans Post, the active work of the organization has been suspended, the few remaining Veterans gathered to perform the cherished duties of their ritual. The annual literary exercises were held at the Alhambra, every seat of which was occupied by people in whose hearts are cherished hallowed memories of the men who were ready to lay the sacrifice of life on the Altar of Country.

The exercises opened with the annual introductory remarks by Past Commander Mansfield and the silent salute to the dead by the Veterans, followed by an overture by the Redwood City Band.

Rev. Father Sullivan, pastor of Mt. Carmel Catholic Church offered the invocation, beseeching that the nation and its institutions might continue unimpaired, and that the spirit of patriotism, with peace as its watchword may prevail.

The Redwood City quartet composed of Messrs. Carrington, McManis, Lian, Schitt and Martin rendered a patriotic selection.

Miss Winter ably recited Lincolns Gettysburg Address.

Stanton Mullen rendered a vocal solo entitled "A Little Boy Called Lincoln," and little Miss Ruth Lida recited "Old Glory."

Hon. Marshall Black, of Palo Alto, mayor of the day, delivered an impressive address, speaking in substance as follows:

No one can attempt to speak on a day like this without a sense of the utter futility of words. If silence ever golden, it must be today when we honor the memory of men whose lives were more significant than any speech.

With words we make promises, utter eulogies, declare principles. But these promises may be broken, these eulogies be insincere, these principles be false.

It is the act that counts, and judging these men by the supreme sacrifice of their acts, their absolute patriotism becomes immortal.

A half century ago this was the most unwarlike nation on earth. Thirty millions of people had an army of less than ten thousand men. It was generally believed that our republic was secure and the blessings of peace were always to be ours.

And then came four years of darkness and of trial. It was a deluge of blood. It was the supreme test of patriotism.

I hardly think it necessary to dwell today on the story of that terrible struggle. It is part of the story of this nation. The names of Grant and Lee and Sherman and Sheridan and Thomas are imperishable. The battlefields of Gettysburg, and Lookout Mountain and the Wilderness are the scars of the nation.

With the return of peace, those who were left went back to their homes and the ordinary pursuits of life. Their work had been nobly done. The issue had been finally determined. The stability of representative government had been demonstrated. The American Republic was no longer an experiment. A government of and for and by the people was not to perish from the earth.

What return shall a grateful people give to these heroes for their selfless services? How shall we reward their sacrifices? What is the highest honor and reverence we can pay to their memories?

I believe that every material reward that it is proper for Government authority to give has been given.

There is not a soldiers grave in either battlefield or cemetery that is unmarked. For every aged and crippled veteran a comfortable home has been provided. The wealth of this nation has been poured out to pension the deserving soldier or his widow.

So material want has been neglected. We honor these patriots too in the beautiful sentiment expressed by this custom of scattering flowers upon their graves once a year.

Forty-one years ago this month, General John A. Logan, National Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, took up the question of having that organization inaugurate the custom of scattering flowers on the graves of the Union soldiers all over the Union at some uniform time or day.

The idea struck General Logan as being a most proper thing to do, and he issued an order in which he named the 30th day of May, 1868, "for the purpose of strewn with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who had died in defense of their country during the late Rebellion, and whose bodies now lie in almost every city, village, or hamlet, churchyard in the land."

After speaking to the Grand Army comrades of their duties he closed with these words: "It is the purpose of the commander-in-chief to inaugurate this observance with the hope that it will be kept up from year to year while a survivor of the war remains to honor the memory of the departed."

And so Memorial Day has become a high and holy festival. It is the day on which there is a great outpouring of patriotic sentiment all over this land. We show then that we honor the memory of these departed defenders of the flag, and at-

so that we love the nation whose banner they followed.

And I am glad too, that there has grown up a general feeling that the patriot dead are not only those who wore the blue and marched under the flag. There were patriots, who at home upheld the soldiers hearts and inspired them to duty. They were the women, who gave their loved ones, who breathed up prayers for their safety and return, whose needles stitched for them, whose hands wrought for them, whose letters cheered them, whose love forever embodied itself in something that should comfort and relieve them. Let us honor the women too.

"But there is a higher honor yet than we can pay these men, higher than any material gift or any mere observance of this day. We can cultivate that patriotism of which the soldiers of the Civil war were as true examples as the world has ever known. This is an occasion on which we should ask ourselves the question, What does patriotism mean?"

"It means love of country. It means sacrifice for the country we love. Nothing but real love of country could have inspired nearly three million Union soldiers to leave home and family and offer to die if it be to preserve our free institutions.

"Love of country alone could have inspired three hundred thousand men to die for this Union. How best can we cultivate such patriotism as this? In our generation sacrifice of life may not be required. But the duty of patriotism is clear nevertheless. The liberties of this country will not be preserved without everlasting vigilance.

"The great forces of wealth and organized selfishness threaten our national life the moment the spirit of patriotism becomes latent. It is a commercial age and we worship at commercial shrines. Too many men would rather say 'I am a financial success' than 'I am an American citizen.'"

"Public service is sneered at and public office too frequently is sought only as a means of personal aggrandizement. Great corporate interests dominate congress and legislatures. Monopolies and special privileges are being acquired that will make terrible inequalities for the young man or woman seeking a livelihood in the future. As great evils threaten our national life today as the slavery power threatened before the war.

"In too many of our homes the children learn little or nothing about the history and spirit of American institutions. The lessons of the noble sacrifices of less than half a century ago bid fair to be forgotten.

"It is the plain homely duties of patriotic citizenship that are before us. From the lives of those men we learn that every citizen must take his part. The responsibility of participating in the political activities of one's state and nation cannot be evaded. It is our duty to see that the youth of our public schools are taught that it is an honor to be able to say 'I am an American citizen.' Let them hear again and again the story of the valor and the victories of the veterans of 1861.

"Teach them that when they arrive at manhood's estate they should never absent themselves from political duty. Teach them, too, that they should never prefer personal success to the welfare of city, state or Union.

"Ask them to observe the conduct of these veterans, not only in the thrilling scenes of war but in the quiet pursuits of peace. It is forty-five years since the war ended, but in almost every community of the northern states you can find members of the Grand Army of the Republic doing their part in honest, determined fashion to make this world a better place to live in.

"During all these years they have been a bulwark of good government. And it is an inspiration to meet many of them today, hale, hearty, clearheaded, loving their country and their flag as of yore. May their remaining years be full of peace and appreciation and content.

"Today is a day to make new and lofty resolves. It is a day to consecrate ourselves again to the principles of unselfishness in both public and private life. The nation was saved by the consecrated valor of the patriots we honor by this gathering. It is our duty to maintain the same ideals, the ideals that country is to be put above self, honor or above wealth, and equal opportunity above special privilege."

What a beautiful conception it was that prompted Abrahm Kohn of Chicago, in February, 1861, to send to Abraham Lincoln, on the eve of his starting for Washington to take the office of President to which he had been elected, a flag of our country, bearing on its silken folds these words from the fifth and sixth verses of the first chapter of Joshua: "Have I not commanded thee, be strong and of good courage? Be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed, for the Lord, our God, is with thee, whithersoever thou goest. There shall no man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life. As I was with Moses so shall I be with thee. I will not fail thee or forsake thee."

This encouraged and cheered, Mr. Lincoln took the oath of office. Not any man was able to stand before him. The Lord, our God, was with him and did not fail him or forsake him until his work was gloriously done.

That message from the book of Joshua may still be read with the same meaning and the same certainty of fulfillment. True patriotism will never die in this Republic. No heroic sacrifice was ever lost. The characters of men are molded and controlled by what their fathers have done before them.

MENLO PARK NEWS IN BRIEF MENTION

Water Brought From the River Jordan is Used at Christening.

HISTORIC RESIDENCE IS SOLD

Notes of People Who Are Coming and Going—Grand Marshal of Native Sons Boosts Admission Day.

Miss Ethel Decker, the handsome young daughter of D. Decker of Palo Alto, was united in marriage last Wednesday in San Francisco to Joseph Ney of Vallejo. The young couple are spending their honeymoon at Lake Tahoe and on returning will go to housekeeping at Vallejo, where Mr. Ney is engaged in business.

This week the Palo Alto presshaver a milder tone in its articles concerning Menlo Park. It is about time they would get off the perch and stop vilifying the town and its people and display some sense of fairness. The people of this town are wrought up over this matter and any further abuse and slurs will be met with prompt and quick revenge.

The old Capt. Goodall home here—beautiful and historic—was sold this week by H. C. Tuchsens of Redwood City in connection with Baldwin and Howell, to an eastern rentleman. The new owner contemplates vast improvements, the grand old mansion will receive particular attention.

Miss Martha Kuck, the talented young artist, has been engaged to teach in the Milton Bradley Summer School for teachers in San Francisco. James E. Fitzgerald, Grand Marshal of the Native Sons, accompanied by prominent speakers addressed the merchants and members of the chamber of commerce of San Jose last week in connection with the Admission Day celebration which takes place this year at the Garden City. The young grand marshal was the guest of honor at an informal reception given him by the Native Sons of San Jose after the meeting.

Walter Catherine Linforth, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linforth, was christened on Sunday, May 23d the reverend Chinn officiating. The water used in the ceremony was taken from the River Jordan some years ago by Mr. Payot, father of Mrs. Linforth. W. W. Montague, ex-postmaster of San Francisco was the Godfather and the other sponsors.

At the close of the exercises the procession formed as follows: Band, Fire Department, Grand Army, Relief Corps, Drum Corps, School Children and Citizens.

At the cemetery a prayer was offered by Rev. C. C. Kirtland and "The Vacant Chair" was sung by the school children, after which the graves of the soldiers were decorated. On the return to town a lunch was served by the ladies of the Relief Corps at Odd Fellows' hall to the Grand Army and a large number of invited guests.

During the afternoon the school children gave a competitive drill on Main street for prizes of one silk flag. The judges, E. O. Rhodes, P. P. Chamberlain and T. O'Leary seventh grades.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE INCREASE

Reports of Census Marshals Show Growth of County Schools.

County Superintendent of Schools Roy W. Cloud, has completed his census report from the statistics submitted by the various district marshals. The increase this year, while not so great as that of last, is substantial and allows 100 primary grade teachers as against 93 for last year. The districts having a sufficient increase to secure additional teachers were San Mateo, Colma, Millbrae and South San Francisco. San Mateo now has 25 teachers, 3/4 of the entire supply for the county.

There are now 3329 families on the census list as compared to 2945 in 1908. There are 5799 children between the ages of 5 and 17 while last year there were 5245. The 1909 census showed 7287 children under the age of 17. The census of 1908 showed 7262. Of the census children there are 2984 white boys, 2754 white girls, 17 negro boys, 9 negro girls, 4 indian girls, 15 mongolian boys and 7 mongolian girls.

4242 children attended public school, 219 attended private school and 1329 attended no school during the year. Of the 7897 children, 7679 are native born, 218 foreign born and 2834 of them have not been vaccinated.

The largest districts are San Mateo with 989 families and 2272 children; Colma with 571 families and 1362 children; Redwood City 405 families and 899 children and South San Francisco with 254 families and 666 children.

The Union Sunday School picnic was held at Congress Springs, Saratoga, and was much enjoyed by all. The company went to San Jose where there was a special car provided to take them directly to the picnic grounds, without changing cars or the usual stops. The day was ideal, and the place all that could be desired. Plenty of room, seats and tables for the bountiful repast, swings and see-saws, for the children. In those beautiful woods one is reminded of Longfellow's description of another place.

"Where the silver brook, from its lair, pours the white cascade; And, babbling low amid the tangled woods,

Slips down through moss grown stones with endless laughter. The silent majesty of these deep woods,

Shall uplift thy thoughts from earth. As to the sunshine and the pure, bright air,

Their tops the green trees lift, Groves, through whose broken roof, The sky looks in, mountains, and shattered cliff and mighty trees.

After forty years' active service as tax attorney for the Central Pacific and the Southern Pacific railroad companies, E. Blackburn Ryan, the last of the old guard of those big corporations has retired on a pension. His resignation, which became effective on the first of the month, was followed by the official announcement of the appointment of his successor, Jere Burke, confidential political agent of William F. Herrin. Mr. Ryan probably is the most widely known of the old time Central Pacific officials in California, and for years he shared with the late W. H. Mills, head of the land department of the Central Pacific Co., the distinction of being well in the confidence of the builders and later the operators of the two roads.

Jere Burke's appointment to Ryan's duties gives him the first definite title he has enjoyed during his many years service with the Southern Pacific Company. For years he has acted as the political agent of Chief Consul William F. Herrin and has had an office adjoining the law department. There have gathered from time to time some of the most notable politicians in the State, who have made political history in the State Convention hall or at the annual sessions of the Legislature. Mr. Ryan will continue in the office some time to come but will be relieved of the bulk of the duties.

The Rose Fete given for the benefit of the Parochial school was a splendid success. The attendance yesterday afternoon was beyond expectation while in the evening the crowd could not find standing room. The hall was crowded to the doors. Queen Fannie appeared in all her regal splendor attended by her richly-robed prime minister and court retinue. The coronation ceremony was impressive at the conclusion of which the queen was greeted with plaudits from her loyal and affectionate subjects. The crown was placed on the head of the gracious queen by little Marcella O'Keefe. The program in the evening was well arranged and well carried out. The May pole drill by about 75 children was the hit of the evening. Too much credit cannot be given the ladies who had the fete in charge. To their labors are due the success of the affair. About $700 will be turned over to the Parochial School.

"A busy-body" might be defined as one who generally has no business in this world beyond making it his business to neglect his own business in order to attend to the business of others.

Wealthy Oakland Man Purchases Home in Wellesley Park—Redwood Eagles Will Celebrate.

Captain Edmund M. C. Whitney, a wealthy resident of Oakland, has purchased the Pugh place at Wellesley Park which he will improve extensively and make it one of the prettiest homes in that favored residential locality. Mrs. Pugh will most likely take up her residence in San Francisco.

William J. Strannahan and Master Wilfred Wright of San Francisco spent Decoration Day with Mrs. H. S. Johnston of Ivy Cottage. The former is a brother and young Wright is a nephew of Mrs. Johnston. Both organizations will meet at the Odd Fellows Hall at 2 o'clock, and proceed to Union Cemetery, where the exercises will be held. Conveyances will be provided for the ladies.

Thomas Wilson, wife and child departed for Hollister yesterday where they will spend a month with the former's parents.

G. W. Walker filed a suit in the justice's court of the second township yesterday against J. McKinstry and his wife Gertrude McKinstry to recover the sum of $150 for work done on their new $8000 dwelling at San Carlos. The building was erected by Walker and this sum is a balance due. A singular coincidence about the suit is that both litigants served in the Brer war. McKinstry was a captain in an English company and Walker was one of his men.
